

Public Interest Law Institute (PILI)

The Public Interest Law Institute (PILI) is pleased to invite applications for its Public Interest Law Fellows Program for 2010-2011. PILI will select lawyers from China, Indonesia, Nepal, Russia, Serbia, and West Africa for ten months of study and practical experience in New York and Budapest, Hungary. The program targets future leaders in various fields of public interest advocacy.

We are starting the recruitment process and kindly ask your help in passing along this fellowship announcement and application to your colleagues, both individuals and organizations, that you think would be interested in applying or who could further disseminate the announcement.

The deadline for applications is Wednesday, March 31, 2010.

For more information about the Fellowship and application process, please visit: <http://www.pili.org/>